

Medical School Admission

Approved 2006

The NZMA believes that New Zealand should train medical students representative of, appropriate for, and sufficient in number for our population. Consequently, entry to medical school should be based on the principles of equity, fairness and merit and not on the ability to pay.